Murder Trail Ends as Youth Is Captured

By JACK BACON, United Press Staff Correspondent

DOUGLAS, Wyo. (UP)—Charles Starkweather, 19, "mad dog" killer of 10 and possibly 11 persons, was charged with first degree murder here today as a legal tug-of-war developed over his prosecution.

Meanwhile, the young marksman's only expressed concern was about his personal appearance.

Converse County Sheriff Earl Heflin served Starkweather with a murder warrant, signed by Justice of the Peace Harry Wise. It accused Starkweather of murdering Merle Collison, 34, a Great Falls, Mont., shoe salesman.

Lt. E.R. Henninger of the Lincoln, Neb., police department then questioned Starkweather. Henninger said he wanted to find out if the young man had committed more murders of which authorities were not aware.

But Henninger complained that Wyoming authorities showed they were "not cooperating," because he was not permitted to talk to Starkweather until today.

Asks for Boots — Starkweather was roused shortly after 7 a.m. in the Converse County jail by Heflin, one of two law officers who ran the short and cocky young marksman to earth Wednesday in a bullet-smeared chase along a highway.

"How about my cowboy boots back?" asked Starkweather, who is wanted for a murder of the shoe salesman here and 9 or 10 killings in and around Lincoln, Neb.

Then in succession he asked for and got a breakfast of bacon and eggs, juice, toast and milk; his fancy black and white cowboy boots; and a bar of soap—to wash from his red hair the black shoe polish which he had used as a dye in a futile attempt at disguise.

Starkweather's bravado seemed to be returning. It had vanished for a time Wednesday after officials shot holes in his stolen Packard automobile during the wild chase through Douglas.

Calls for Death — Upstairs in another jail cell, Carol Fugate, his 14-year-old companion, crying his two-state rampage with rifle and shotgun, emerged from the influence of sedatives given her after she was brought in, yesterday.

But her state of shock seemed giving way to hysteria. She reportedly called "Mom, Mom!" from her jail cell.

Her mother is dead and was one of the victims of Starkweather's. Continued on Page Two

Study to Be Made of the Fire Ant

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—Representatives of the state plant board and the federal department of agriculture are to make a survey of South Arkansas in February on spread of the imported fire ant.

Robert Anderson assistant chief inspector of the plant board, said a limited study of Union county recently showed no active ant mounds survived spraying by the state and county last year. He said a few active mounds have been found north and south of the Union county area and have been had-treated.

The February survey will take about six weeks.

Winds Again Delay Firing of Jupiter

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UP)—Winds up to 210 miles an hour in the upper air threatened today to delay further any efforts to launch the Army's Jupiter C satellite missile.

No other major missile launchings would be feasible, either, if the high air currents continued—and forecasters expected them to last well into Friday morning.

A low pressure area also moved across Florida, closer to the ground, where the wind kicked up sharply Wednesday night.

Whatever launching plans may have been in the air Wednesday were quickly blown away. It has been widely rumored, but always officially denied, that the Army is about ready to go with its Jupiter C satellite vehicle, which has replaced temporarily the disabled Navy Vanguard on the testing schedule.

The 1,500-mile range Thor rose into a clear sky Tuesday night, 30 minutes later the Defense Department announced it had flown its prescribed course and landed in a pre-selected impact area.

Almost 24 hours later the Air Force announced the recovery of data on the test, showed that the Thor had deviated from course and did not complete a successful flight.

Capacity Crowd Likely at CC Banquet

A capacity crowd of 200 is expected to attend the annual chamber of commerce banquet and membership meeting at 6:30 p. m. Friday in the high school cafeteria.

W. R. Stephens of Little Rock, president of the Arkansas-Louisiana Gas Company, will deliver the principal address. He will be introduced by Lloyd Spencer, Hope banker and himself a director of the utility firm.

More than half of the 200 available tickets have already been sold, and B. N. Holl, manager, said he was receiving an unusual heavy demand for tickets from the town of persons, namely from Madison, Texarkana, Prescott, Arkadelphia and Little Rock.

"We want to accommodate all our local people who desire to attend, but half the tickets are gone and the balance will be sold on a first-come, first-served basis," Mr. Holl said.

He urged all local persons to purchase their tickets without further delay, and they may be obtained either at the chamber of commerce office or from Jewell Moore, ticket chairman.

Circuit Judge Lyle Brown will act as master of ceremonies for the annual event beginning at 6:30 p. m.

The appearance of Mr. Stephens here Friday was causing the Hempstead industrial fund to spurt with several additional persons and firms buying stock in the foundation. Mr. Stephens is expected to touch on the subject.

Jonesboro Slates Air Line Hearing

JONESBORO (UP)—Congressman E. C. Gathings of West Memphis advised a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce services Wednesday that a pre-hearing conference will be held soon on air line service to Jonesboro.

Gathings said the exact date for the Civil Aeronautics Board hearing at Washington has not been set. He suggested that Jonesboro update its statistics showing the need for airline service and have at least three witnesses ready to testify.

The city applied for air service more than two years ago. At the time of the original application it submitted data on its ability to support an airline.

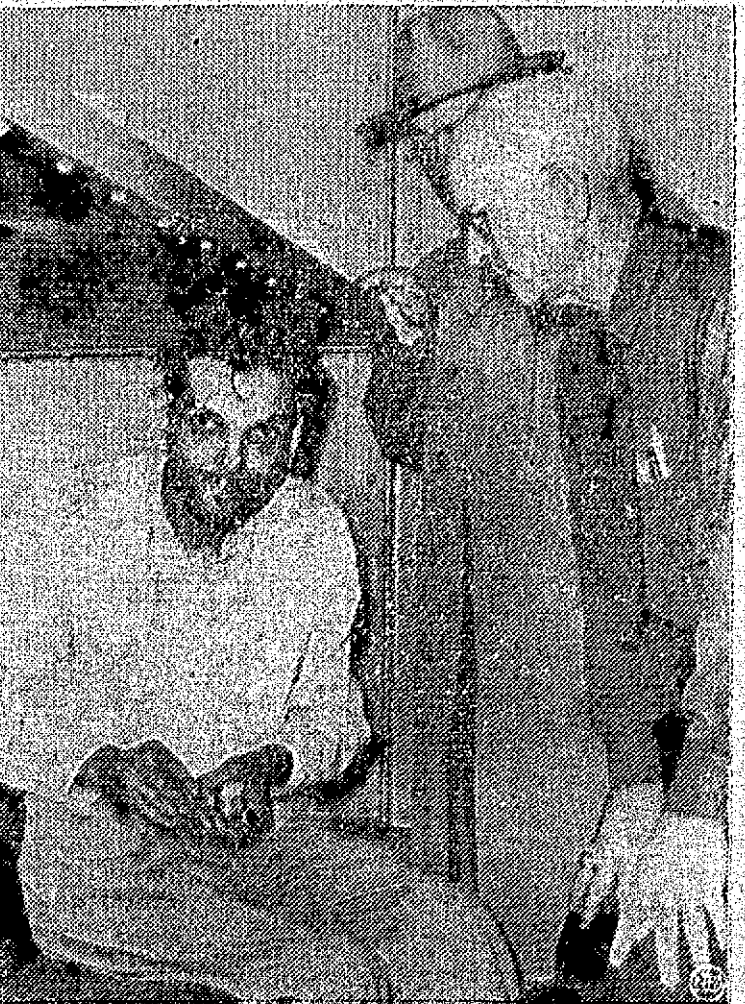

Central Airlines Inc. and Trans-Texas Airways are seeking the service.

HAPPY MOMENT — It's a happy moment for SP3/6 Chester F. Neal of Earle, Ark., as he meets his stepdaughter, Carmen Rosita Mueller, after her arrival in New York from Stuttgart, Germany. Neal, stationed at Ft. Carson, Colo., will adopt the 31-year-old Carmen when he becomes 21 next August. 116 Fires Are Set Deliberately CROSSETT (UP)—A total of 116 deliberate fires have been set in Ashley county since last October 1, district forester Custer Ross reported.

He said 70 fires have occurred since January 1 and 70 were set by arsonists. All of the fires involved small acreage, he added, and most were in the western part of the county.

In all, 103 fires were reported in the county last year with 53 listed as arson, Ross said.

Ike Asks for Authority to Reduce Tariffs

By UNITED PRESS

President Eisenhower vaded in to the year's toughest battle with Congress by asking today that his authority to reduce tariffs be extended for five years.

The President told the Senate and House in a special message that extension of the Reciprocity Trade Act is "essential to our national economic interest, to our security and to our foreign relations."

The President, who rarely used the word "must" in dealing with Congress, said his program "must be enacted."

The current act, first passed during the Roosevelt administration, is due to expire June 30. In the past it has been extended for one-year intervals rather than the five Eisenhower now asks. Basic purpose of the act is to let more foreign goods into this country in return for more U.S. markets abroad.

Other congressional news: Defense: The Army said in congressional testimony published today that Russia may have an intercontinental ballistic missile in operation by July. But it said the first Soviet ICBMs would have "a very limited" capability.

Economic: Spokesmen for industry, labor and farm groups, testifying before the Joint Economic Committee, accused President Eisenhower of failing to come to grips with major economic issues. But they differed on what the problems are and how they should be solved.

Baseball: The House anti-trust subcommittee recommended that Congress place the business aspect of professional baseball, football, hockey and basketball under federal anti-trust regulation.

Autos: General Motors President Harlow H. Curtice told the Senate anti-monopoly subcommittee that under no circumstances would his company negotiate a profit-sharing contract with the United Auto Workers. Union President Walter P. Reuther said Wednesday the union was "deadly serious" in its impending contract demands that workers share in GM's profits.

Education: Dr. Edward Teller, "father of the hydrogen bomb," proposed a program to improve science education in elementary and high schools. He called for better pay for teachers, greater use of science education films on television, and federal matching of regular salaries of outstanding science teachers.

Rackets: The Senate Rackets Committee produced evidence that President William F. Maloney of the Operating Engineers charged the union $13,378 for a trip to Europe that was actually paid for by the government.

Unemployment in U. S. May Go Over 4 Million

WASHINGTON (UP)—Labor Department economists predicted today unemployment will rise above four million in January. February and March and decline slightly in April.

They forecast the jobless total for January will range from 4,030,000 to 4,650,000 when compared with 3,700,000 in December.

The government reported 3,400,000 unemployed in December. The number of workers without jobs usually increases from December to January but this year the business slowdown will trigger larger-than-usual jump, the economists said.

They said postwar trends indicate unemployment will level off and then decline to 3,700,000 or so by May. But they also warned of a possibility of bigger-than-expected joblessness if things don't pick up soon.

The labor economists said unemployment could reach five million if 1958 is a bad year for the auto industry, if consumers hold back on buying, and if businessmen slash stocks on their shelves. That would push unemployment above the six per cent mark.

"If unemployment persists to grade and services—watch out," said one of the economists. "We'll be in for real hard times."

Nearly a million more workers in January than in December reported being out of work for a week or more in applying for unemployment compensation. The insured unemployment figure rose to 2,000,000 in the middle of this month. It was nearly triple the mid-October figure.

The official unemployment figure is always higher since domestic workers, farm workers, self-employed and other groups are not covered by jobless benefits.

The government economists said heavy manufacturing industries — steel, auto, machinery and appliances — will bear the brunt of layoffs. Retail stores also are expected to cut back jobs in addition to the usual slow-down in construction and apparel industries.

Calls for Probe of Insurance Rates in State

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—A special committee of the Arkansas Medical Society Wednesday urged the state to investigate several health and accident insurance companies operating in the state.

Dr. Sam Jameson of El Dorado is head of the group which talked with Gov. Orval Faubus. The committee told Faubus it had uncovered several cases in which the public has been defrauded by the companies.

The governor said he would ask Insurance Commissioner Harvey C. Combs, who was out of town Wednesday, to meet with the committee as the commissioner could best handle the investigation.

Dr. T. D. Brown, of Little Rock, Medical Society president, said the situation is much worse than the committee expected.

"We have documented facts," he said. "The committee reported some policies have so many exclusions they are worthless, and others require a new claim every week."

Governor Approves Pilkinton's Plan

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—Gov. Orval E. Faubus said Thursday he would approve "each and every one" of the suggestions by Judge James Pilkinton to end the racial impasse at Central high school.

"They are very constructive," the governor said after reading an advance copy of the speech the Hope chancellor had prepared for delivery at noon at Hot Springs.

He added that the Little Rock School Board has done nothing to remedy the situation.

"How long does it take their attorney to review the New Orleans ruling?" he asked.

He was referring to a ruling by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans giving the Dallas, Tex., schools more time to work out their integration program.

Negro Student Denied Warrant by Prosecutor

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—Pulaski County Prosecuting Attorney Frank Holt refused to issue a warrant requested today by Minnie Jean Brown, one of the nine Negro students who integrated Central High School last fall.

The said, however, he would investigate an alleged kicking of the student by a white student.

He said he did not know when he might take further action.

The Brown girl and her mother made a complaint against the boy, who kicked the girl Wednesday at Central after school was out. He was grabbed immediately by a teacher.

The incident reportedly was on the school grounds and therefore under jurisdiction of the school.

The unidentified boy was suspended earlier Wednesday according to superintendent of schools Virgil Blossom, on another matter, and had returned to school to pick up fellow-students in a car pool. Blossom said he was told the student kicked the Brown girl.

An investigation is being made by the school, Blossom said, and is not complete.

The Negro girl was suspended just before Christmas vacation for throwing a bowl of chili on two white students. Two weeks ago another white student, later suspended himself, threw a bowl of soup on the Brown girl.

More Snow Covers New England Area

By UNITED PRESS — Snow — Jaden New England received more new snow early today, but the storm center was moving out to sea.

The U.S. Weather Bureau said general snowfall in the area was expected to stop late today as a local disturbance continued its northeastward movement across Maine.

A six-hour deposit of 2 inches of snow at Burlington, Vt., brought the total snow depth to 19 inches, while an extra 4 inches of snow at Rumford, Maine, piled up snow depths well over the 2-foot mark.

Vestiges of the heavy rains which swept across the Gulf Coast Wednesday fell on the Carolinas during the night, and there was general rainfall in the Northwest.

Rain also fell in light amounts in Missouri.

Other than some cooling in the Northwest and slight warming in parts of the Dakotas, there was little temperature change around the country. Near the Canadian border in North Dakota, temperatures were about 10 degrees above zero—the lowest in the nation.

Roy Anderson Has Major Operation

Roy Anderson underwent a major operation Tuesday at St. Michael's Hospital in Texarkana and friends of the Hope insurance man will be glad to know that he is making a good recovery. Mr. Anderson will remain at St. Michael's for about 10 days.

Corning Man Seeks Radio Permit

WASHINGTON (UP)—A Corning man asked the Federal Communications Commission Wednesday for permission to operate a daytime radio station in the Northeast Arkansas community.

Pulls W. Cochran requested permission to operate a station which would have a power of 500 watts at 1590 kilocycles.

Pilkinton Offers Solution to End School Trouble

HOT SPRINGS (UP)—Hope Chancellor James H. Pilkinton offered today a "possible solution" to the Central High School integration dispute which included reassignment of Negro students, troop withdrawal and the school board's resignation, all during a proposed "breathing spell."

Judge Pilkinton, who recently withdrew as a candidate for governor because he predicted the campaign would be "bitter and revolve around the racial question," spoke at the "V" Forum lectures.

The chancellor also chided Gov. Orval Faubus and President Eisenhower for having been "damagingly near the coals" in "playing politics with the race question."

"The people and the press should look with disfavor on any one who seeks to play politics with the race question," the judge said. "Whether Gov. Faubus or President Eisenhower have done that, is not for me to say," but both men have some crumbs on their fingers and faces.

Pilkinton said his "possible solution" to the integration situation "was offered" only for those connected with the affair to think about.

He said the court order to integrate Central "has now been completed during the first semester. The matter could and should be further reviewed by both the school board and federal district court in light of that experience."

Pilkinton said to provide such a "breathing spell" the following steps should be taken:

—The school board should reassign the Negroes to Horace Mann school for the second semester under the Arkansas Pupil Assignment Act. "No," federal judge Pilkinton, "is likely to hold the school board in contempt for doing so under existing circumstances."

—The National Guard should be removed after the Negroes are assigned and in the future, both state and federal authorities should refrain from using troops in local school district affairs.

—The school board should resign, such resignations to be effective upon election and qualification of their successors at a special election. Any persons including members of the present board could then seek office.

Pilkinton pointed out this would keep the racial question from becoming an issue "in some statewide political campaign, where nothing but further confusion would result."

—The new board should seek a complete review of the present plan in district court "in light of experience of the first semester and in light of other recent court decisions" making what revisions deemed necessary.

—The National Administration should "discharge its responsibility and lift the terrible (retired U.S. Eastern District Judge Thomas C. Trimble) vacancy on the federal bench in Little Rock without further delay."

Noting that former U.S. Supreme Court Chief Justice John Marshall once said a judge "must be perfectly and completely independent with nothing to influence or control him but God and his conscience," Pilkinton said "the judge appointed to the Bench in the Eastern District of Arkansas should be such a man."

"It goes without saying that no rule cannot be permitted," cautioned Judge Pilkinton. "Integration may destroy some schools, but no rule will destroy the government itself."

It's pretty definite that Dewey Hendrix will oppose Jimmy Cook in the race for Sheriff of Hempstead.

Arnold Middlebrooks, present County Clerk, is a possible candidate for the post as is Ivy Mitchell.

And it's reported that Ned Purdie, bigwig in stock and farm circles in Hempstead, would like mightily well to go against Judge U. G. Garrett, though nothing definite so far.

Everyone is reminded that tonight the Mothers will march on Polo throughout Hempstead.

Have your porch lights on by the time the fire whistle signals the start.

In the Palmos area Mrs. Grace Prather and Mrs. Gary Formby will do the collecting.

Here's an interesting gimmick from Henry Seamon's Summer Manager. Recall a few weeks ago the Russians claiming to have actually seen the legendary Himalayan Snowman?

Well, Henry says anyone can see him at the Saenger stage show Saturday, when "Avalanche Snowman" will be shown on the screen.

Jack Ray left today for the Kansas City sports show where he will perform on the 10-day program.

Incidentally a petition was filed today making LaGrone Williams a candidate for the City Board of Directors.

Previously Hendrix Spraggins had filed for the post made vacant by the untimely death of Roy Thrash.

January 31 is the deadline for buying state and city automobile tags.

Charles Royerson reports 1,400 city tags sold to date with about 1,500 by the deadline last year.

This indicates sales are about the same.

rampage, along with her step-father and half sister.

Two county commissioners, E.C. Robbins and George Cross, said they will try to get County Atty. William Dixon to waive prosecution so that Nebraska authorities may extradite Starkweather.

Complicating the situation was Gov. Milward Simpson's avowed stand against capital punishment. FBI is interested.

Dixon conferred with federal authorities. The FBI has a fugitive warrant out for Starkweather. Indications were there might be federal kidnapping charges involved.

Dixon disclosed on Wednesday night that Starkweather spent an hour writing a statement which Heflin called a "confession." Dixon would not say what it contained.

He said Starkweather plans to call his father in Lincoln, Neb., today to arrange for an attorney. At the same time, Dixon said he would file charges accusing Starkweather of the murder of Merle Collins, 34, a Great Falls, Mont., shoe salesman found slain in his car about 10 miles from here.

Decision on Charges Today

Dixon said he could decide today today whether to press the charge on Starkweather over to Nebraska authorities, who want him for the slaughter of nine persons in the Lincoln area.

Both Wyoming and Nebraska have death penalties, but Wyoming Gov. Milward Simpson is opposed to execution in the state's gas chamber.

Starkweather, who had dyed his bright red hair black with shoe polish and worn side-splashed plasses as a disguise, indicated he would plead self-defense, although evidence indicated at least three of his victims were killed in their sleep and a fourth was a 3-year-old girl.

"I shot them all in self defense," he was quoted as telling a deputy sheriff.

He also absolved his girl friend of any connection with the trail of murders in his two-state, 52-mile flight from Lincoln in cars stolen from his victims.

"The girl had no part in it," Starkweather said of his dark-haired sweetheart. "Don't get rough with her. I had her as a hostage. I did all the work."

Police Chief Bob Ainsley, who helped capture Starkweather, said the stocky, 5-foot-10-inch youth "was a real smart alec" after the arrest and kept "smarting off about our ear."

However, in jail later Starkweather turned sullen and covered in a corner of his cell part of the time and lay on his cell bunk hiding his face at other times.

Killer Faced Blindness

At Lincoln, Starkweather's grieving parents were relieved to hear he had been captured alive and claimed he went "berserk" because he faced blindness within a year.

Starkweather's father, Guy, an unemployed carpenter, said his son had been worried about his sight and other ailments. "A few years ago he had been hit on the forehead with a two-by-four and never felt right since," the father said of the youth.

Nebraska authorities said they want Starkweather for the murders of at least nine persons, all killed in groups of three.

The victims were C. Lauer Ward, prominent Lincoln businessman, his wife and maid, whose bodies were discovered Wednesday; Robert Jensen, 17, his girl Carol King, 16, and August Meyer, 70, all of Bennett, Neb., whose bodies were found Tuesday; and Carol's mother, Velda Bartlett, 36, her stepfather, Marion, 57, and her half-sister Betty, 3, found slain Monday.

Nebraska police also suspect Starkweather in the robbery-murder last Dec. 1 of Robert Colvert, a service station attendant in Starkweather's neighborhood. It was believed Carol may have Starkweather to abduct her and learned of this crime, leading embark on his murder spree.

Caught By Chance

Starkweather was caught by chance after a motorist, Joe Sprinkle of Casper, Wyo., saw the killer's getaway car parked alongside a highway near Natural Bridge, Wyo., and offered his assistance.

Starkweather menaced Sprinkle with a .22-caliber rifle, warning, "You better help me get the emergency brake off this car or I'll kill you."

Just then deputy sheriff William Roemer drove up, possibly preventing Sprinkle from becoming Starkweather's next victim.

Carol jumped from Starkweather's car and ran screaming to Roemer.

"He's killed a man, he's crazy ... he's going to kill me," she shouted.

"Who?" Roemer asked. "Starkweather," the girl said.

The fugitive drove off down the highway in the 1956 black Packard he had stolen from Ward. Roemer radioed for help and the chase was on.

Getaway Car Riddled

Police riddled the getaway car, knocking Starkweather in the right ear. The killer, apparently frightened by the sight of his own blood, stopped the car and surrendered a short time later.

"I should have aimed a little to the left and killed him," said Sheriff Earl Heflin.

The sheriff said, "In a quarter of an inch would have done it. Another quarter of an inch and I'd have blown his head off."

Barlier, police were put on the trail of the black Packard by an alert filling station operator, Roy Graham, Ellsworth, Neb., where Starkweather stopped Wednesday for gasoline.

Graham said he became suspicious of "why a fellow that young had a nice car like that" and took down the license number and called police. Graham said Carol was asleep in the front seat when Starkweather pulled into the station.

Police State Motives

Authorities said Starkweather's motive in all of the murders apparently was to get a new gun, car or money, although Miss King also was the victim of an unnatural sex act.

When captured, Starkweather had two .22-caliber rifles, a sawed-off .410 gauge shotgun, a small revolver and two hunting knives. Ainsley said Starkweather could have opened fire on his captors, but apparently didn't have the stomach for a gun duel.

Collison, a salesman for a St. Louis shoe firm, apparently was killed because Starkweather wanted his car, police said.

Shot While Sleeping
Starkweather found the shoe salesman sleeping in his car along the highway near Arto and killed him with one of his rifles. He then drove Collison's car to where the Packard was parked

Attempt to Assassinate Chou Reported

LONDON (UP)—The Manchester Guardian today reported an alleged attempt by a group of American educated Chinese to assassinate Chinese Communist Premier Chou En-Lai.

The Guardian, a respected and reliable newspaper, said one of the students actually stabbed and wounded Chou with a pocketknife during an interview with him in Peking last July 28.

The newspaper said the assassination attempt was planned by three of 40 Chinese students who were educated in American universities and who returned to their homelands to fight Communism.

It based its report on an interview with a Chinese student it identified only as "Mr. Li." It said he was the only one of the group to escape after the attempt on Chou. It said "Li" is now in England but plans to return to Red China to carry out underground work.

"Li" was quoted as saying at least 34 of the student group were executed or killed in clashes with the Communists.

"Li" described the assassination attempt:

"They had only a pen knife. They knew that whether they were successful or not they would never return. When they did not come back that night we knew they had made the attempt, but we did not know for a month that it had failed. It was given out that Chou was ill and I did not see him at a public function until the performance of an Indian dancer at the end of August."

Refuses to Answer Senate Probers

By DICK WEST

United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Chicago contractor S. A. Healy refused to answer Senate Rackets Committee questions today despite a threat of contempt action which produced a shouting match between his attorney and Sen. Pat McNamara (D-Mich.).

The interlude came when Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) offered Healy a chance to change his mind and answer committee questions about operations of his contracting firm. Healy Wednesday became the first witness in the current inquiry to claim the Fifth Amendment's protection against self-incriminating testimony.

Healy refused to talk about $228,923 charged on his firm's books as non-tax-deductible expenses or to say whether any of the money went to William E. Maloney. Maloney is the president of the Operating Engineers Union who, with his wife, was disclosed Wednesday to hold 10 safe deposit boxes scattered around the nation.

Questioned today about whether his firm held a 1956 Navy Department contract for construction of aqueducts in San Diego, Healy again invoked the Fifth Amendment. Healy also refused to answer when McClellan asked whether he honestly believed a truthful answer might tend to incriminate him.

McClellan ordered the committee staff to take the same action in Healy's case as it is taking against two Tennessee Teamsters Union officials who recently took the same position. The staff is preparing contempt of Congress papers against the pair.

Then McNamara, one-time local official of the Pipefitters Union, tangled with Jacob Grumet, Healy's lawyer.

McNamara commented that McClellan had "properly castigated" labor leaders and businessmen about their use of the Fifth Amendment. He suggested that McClellan should "properly castigate" the bar association too.

As Grumet jumped to his feet, McNamara added that committee witnesses claim the privilege of their constitutional protection "on the advice of their attorneys" who ought to reap some of the criticism, too.

"That is a most unfair statement to the members of the bar," Grumet said. He said the Fifth Amendment is a part of the Constitution and that its protection is a privilege of all citizens.

Barlier, Sen. Sam J. Ervin (D-N.C.) had called the Operating Engineers the most "deplorable" union yet investigated by the committee.

The committee had hoped to get answers from Healy as to whether he was in collusion with Maloney, and had sought an accounting of how the firm spent $228,923 from 1950 to 1956.

When Sprinkle came by and stopped out of curiosity, the bodies of Ward, a steel company president, and the members of his household were found in Lincoln. Police said Starkweather and Carol apparently broke into the Ward house Tuesday night and shot Ward when he investigated and then killed Ward's wife and maid as they slept in their beds.

Mr. and Leroy Samuel
Celebrate Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Samuel of DeAnn celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary at their home with Open House on Sunday, Jan. 10, 1958.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel were married in 1908 in Hempstead County and have lived in this County since. Mr. Samuel has served as pastor of Mt. Nebo Corinth, Battlefield, Wallaceburg, Evening Shade, Waterecreek, Shady Grove and Rocky Mount Baptist Churches for approximately 20 years and after his retirement he has devoted his time to farming. Both Mr. and Mrs. Samuel are active in church and civic affairs.

They have three sons, Hollis of DeAnn, Elston and Henry of Garland, Texas and one daughter, Mae Belle Bailey of Jacksonville, Ark. and nine grandchildren.

The Samuel home was beautifully decorated throughout with arrangements of Forsythia, Daffodils and Flowering Quince arranged by Mrs. C. G. Critchlow.

Guests were greeted by Mrs. Hollis Samuel, and the receiving line consisted of the honorees, Mrs. Hollis Samuel, Elston Samuel, Glen Bailey and grandsons, David Samuel and Glen Dale Bailey. Micoe Ann Bailey granddaughter, presided at the guest book. Mrs. Nellie Alfrey of Logansport, Ind., sister of Mrs. Samuel, invited the guests in to see the display of lovely gifts.

Mrs. Samuel's dress was of wedge wood rose brocade cotton with accessories of gold, and her corsage was of yellow mums.

The table was covered with a

Tax Revision Bill Okayed by House

By UNITED PRESS

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Senate today received a House-approved tax revision bill that would affect the pocketbooks of groups of taxpayers throughout the country.

Among other things, it would write into law a Treasury regulation barring any taxpayer from claiming a $800 tax exemption for supporting a mistress.

The measure, approved by a House voice vote Tuesday, is designed to correct a number of unintended benefits and hardships resulting from present law without causing much change in tax revenues.

It would require the treasury to make public the secret justification for tax exemption status filed with the Treasury by educational foundations and thousands on other organizations which don't pay income tax.

It would take away certain tax benefits now available to police officers and to retired couples living in California and in other seven community property states.

On the other hand the measure through technical revisions would provide an estimated five million dollars a year in income tax relief for Americans and American firms doing business abroad.

Congress, in Article 1, Section 8, of the Constitution, is given the authority to coin money.

President Attends Brother's Funeral

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower flew to Kansas City today to attend the funeral of his brother, Arthur. He planned to return to Washington this afternoon.

The President was accompanied by one of his brothers, Dr. Milton Eisenhower, president of Johns Hopkins University. Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower remained in Washington.

For the first time, the President and his party used one of the two White House helicopters to go to Washington National Airport.

Arthur, the eldest brother, died Sunday of heart trouble. He was a banker.

And he did it by making her look like a woman.

He was the first Paris designer of the 1938 season to put waists and hips and busts in the place nature meant them to be. And in doing so he was the first to pay his respects to the man who fashions the dress bills.

Dresses said in introducing his collection that he was discarding the sack because it is "despised by every man."

He stuck by his word. A handsome series of ensembles was first down the runway, the coats and dresses were made for each other. The low slung "mild" style hipline of a pink shawl-tung dress was carried out by low belt of its navy blue coat.

When tapered coats were cinched at the waist their dresses had gracefully draped waistlines. When coats ballooned they did so gracefully. When they fell straight from the shoulder they had pockets or bells below the hips to give them form.

Makes Woman Look Like a Woman

PARIS (UP)—Jean Dessas today gave every man what he wanted: A woman who looks like a goddess.

And he did it by making her look like a woman.

Unsentimental Guy Is Poor Husband Material

Dear Dorothy Dix: I've been engaged since Thanksgiving but already I'm beginning to question my choice. Hal is a handsome guy, with a good job and future, a nice disposition, no bad habits. Perfect, you think? But wait! He is also very, very practical. He thinks money spent on flowers, gifts, even greeting cards, is a waste. He has never given me anything I can treasure. His Christmas gift — he felt he had to give me one — was a very practical set of towels. Whenever we went to a formal, I was the only girl without a corsage. Could a girl be happy married to such a man? MARGE

Dear Marge: Let's be practical, too. In the person of one man you will never get all perfection. It's up to you to weigh the pros and cons and come up with what you think you would live with what you must do without. Hal would make a fine husband — if you can adjust to his peculiarity, which is undoubtedly a sign of slinginess — not particularly. If security means more to you than sentiment take him. If you feel you cannot live without sweet nothings, though the rent collector may be banging at the front door — give him up. If you can be philosophical enough to take the bread and let the roses go, you'll have a sound marriage. If you can take roast beef instead of orchids, fine and dandy. Otherwise, accept the fact that your fiancé is a dud at paying the attentions women love, and return the ring (or didn't he give you one)?

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm a young lady of 23 with a slightly lurid past. Guy knows about it — in a small town everyone knows everything about you — but has asked me to marry him anyway. What are our chances for a happy marriage with these foolish escapades behind me? GWEN T.

Dear Gwen: If Guy is a mature, understanding person, your chances are excellent. If he has ever brought up your past in a slurring manner, chances are not good. If he can forgive and forget go ahead. If he is a brooder or nagger, call it off.

Dear Dorothy Dix: My parents recently gave me permission to double-date. All the girls my age single date but my folks say absolutely "not!" I appreciate your opinion on this. I am a P. W.

Dear P. W.: Be grateful for favors granted, and stop complaining. Your parents are very liberal and you have no gripes. When you show that you can handle double-dating with poise and assurance, your folks will let you go on to the next step. Don't rush things.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I recently broke up with a very nice girl and have just realized I'm still in love with her. Meanwhile, I began dating another young lady who is rather fast. How can I drop this girl and return to the one I truly love? BILL M.

Dear Bill: You still have the gift of speech. Use it for both occasions. You needn't be too fussy about the language as long as you get the point across. Good luck.

Places Emphasis on Higher Education

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—Arkansas State Teachers College president Sillas D. Snow Wednesday called for new emphasis on higher education, doubling of educational expenditures, and expansion of technical training.

He told the Little Rock Sorority Club that such steps would help match Russian advancement in education.

"Imitation of Soviet education would undermine American educational democracy," he cautioned, however. Snow explained that Russian education is designed to serve the state while American education develops the individual.

He said 18 per cent of the nation's high schools do not offer chemistry and physics, and unfortunately many of these smaller schools are in Arkansas.

Split of Acreage Funds to Be Planned

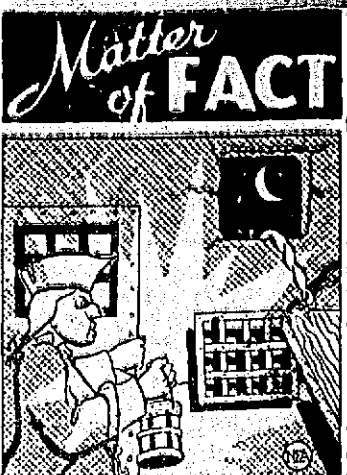

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—The state Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee is to meet next Tuesday to discuss federal instructions on distribution of acreage reserve funds.

Committee administrative officer Clyde P. Liebling said the Department of Agriculture sent the instructions Wednesday, but he would not say what they are until the committee has studied them.

Federal rice and corn allocations are less than what Arkansas farmers have requested.

Ark-La Planning an Ice Rink

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—The president of the Arkansas-Louisiana Gas Company wants to convert the Coliseum into an ice-skating rink in the summer.

A peculiarly hard condition of imprisonment in the American colonial days was the fact that a prisoner often had to pay for his board. Before leaving jail, he or his relatives had to pay these charges. One jail keeper, tell particularly outrageous because a prisoner escaped owing him a big bill.

'Middleman' Gets More for Farm Foods

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Agriculture Department reported today the middleman's share for marketing farm-produced foods averaged 4 per cent higher in 1957 than in 1956, and that a small increase this year "seems likely."

The department said the increase in marketing charges compared with annual increases of 1 to 2 per cent during the preceding four years.

Prices received by farmers for food products were 3 per cent higher in 1957 than in 1956, the first increase in the annual average since 1951. Higher prices for meat animals—particularly hogs—and milk and cream accounted for most of the 1957 rise.

The increase in prices received, however, was offset by the hike in the middleman's take. The result was a farm share in the consumer's food dollar of 40 cents, the same as in 1956.

Retail prices of farm foods were 4 per cent higher in 1957 than in 1956. The department said that although they generally moved upward in both years the 1957 level was below the record annual average in 1952.

Children Are Found Caged in a Trailer

YAKIMA, Wash. (UP)—Three small children who lived "like frightened animals" in wire cages built in the back of a trailer have been turned over to Yakima County authorities, officials said today.

Officials said the two boys, 3 and 2, and a 3-year-old girl, apparently were kept in the wire cages most of the day in addition to being forced to sleep in them.

Held at the county jail for investigation in the case were William B. Hankins, 49, and Ruth J. Mott, 38.

Deputy Sheriff Jack Runyan said he investigated the 12-by-11-foot trailer mounted on a truck chassis near Sunnyside, Wash., Saturday after a salesman reported the children were caged up in the trailer.

Runyan said he arrived at the trailer about 10:30 a.m. and found Hankins still in bed. He said two of the children were still locked up in what he said resembled animal cages.

"They looked like frightened animals," he said.

Runyan reported the three cages were built over a bed at one end of the trailer. He said the cages were small and the older boy did not have enough room to stretch out inside the cage.

All five members of the family lived in the trailer.

Officials said the Mott woman admitted the couple had been living as man and wife for the past eight years. She said in that time they had traveled all over the United States.

She told authorities she had been married at the age of 16 in Detroit and had eight children by the marriage. She said she began living with Hankins in March of 1950, according to authorities.

She protested she did not want to lose the children when told they had been turned over to county authorities.

U.S. Steel Corp. reported record sales and earnings for 1937 despite drops in the fourth quarter. Chairman Roger M. Blough said the company has experienced a slight pick-up in orders. But he cautioned against expecting a rapid tipping at this time. "One swallow does not make a summer."

Kennecott Copper Corp. reported its earnings in 1937 fell to $7.32 a common share from $13.23 in 1936. Although it sold 552,945 tons of copper or 37,726 more than in 1936. The company said the decline reflected lower prices for the metal. It added that because of slow demand Kennecott is cutting back production at three of its U.S. mines by 12 per cent.

The government reported that in 1937 it produced 1,877,000,000 of

Bride - Eldest Honored With Miscellaneous Shower

Miss Frances Avery, bride-elect of Gene Ross was honored with a miscellaneous shower Wednesday evening, Jan. 22 at 7 p.m. in the Midway Church.

The honoree was presented a corsage of pink carnations. After the playing of games, the many lovely and useful gifts displayed under a pink decorated umbrella were opened.

Food drinks and cookies were served to approximately 45 guests.

Ross-Avery Wedding Solemnized

In a candlelight ceremony against a background of greenery and white tapers in branched candelabra, Miss Frances Avery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest E. Avery became the bride of Gene Ross, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Ross of Prescott.

Vows were exchanged Friday, Jan. 24 at 7 p.m. in the bride's home with Rev. Clyde Swift officiating.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a ballerina length gown of pink lace over satin with princess lines. A single orchid was pinned at her shoulder.

Mrs. Gladie Clark served her sister as matron of honor, Rayburn Connell served the groom as best man.

Immediately following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained with a reception. Pink candles burned in silver candelabra around pink carnations on the serving table covered with a lace cloth. Mrs. Donald Avery assisted in the serving of pink punch and the pink and white three-tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom.

After a short wedding trip to Hot Springs the couple are at home at 405 West Main.

No Gratitude From Nations for U. S. Help

NEW YORK, Jan. 29 (INS) — We have sent billions of dollars overseas in the shape of cash, food, arms, machinery and know-how. There has been no ostentatious show of gratitude. Indeed there has been some resentment overseas of Americans who expected such a reaction.

Now we'll try another and humbler route to men's hearts. The International Rescue Committee will soon announce an exciting extension of its work of sending U.S. doctors and medically trained assistants into the underdeveloped areas of the world, to render service such as the two stations IRC's Dr. Thomas A. Dooley has operated in Laos for more than a year.

The new program, to be known as MEDICO, will take its pattern from the work of Dooley and of medical men of vision of Dr. Gordon Segraives, the legendary Burma surgeon, and Dr. Albert Schweitzer. It will be non-governmental, non-sectarian, avoiding two problems that have arisen in trying to send U.S. government or missionary aid to certain neutralist or religion-fearing countries.

American Pharmaceutical firms have generously donated $500,000 in medical supplies before MEDICO is unveiled. The American teams will train local people to care for their own, then pull out after 18 months and leave behind all equipment.

Frank Cowell, of Kearny, N.J., writes indignantly (as have others) on the question of Americans still being held as Pows by the Red Chinese:

"How can you and I and other Americans be called free people or a democracy when this great and supposedly powerful country of ours lets three Americans rot in a foreign country? Why can't the U.S. government demand their release just as the Kremlin and the Reds in China demand and get from us what they want? If the United Nations is such a strong arm of freedom, then why can't Ambassador Lodge demand their release?"

The demands have been made, frank and repeated perhaps ten thousand times in the course of the personal meetings between U.S. Ambassador Alexis Johnson and a Chinese Red ambassador at Geneva. Nothing happens, and the administration is on record as saying it won't go to war to free them.

Have you put your dutch tulip bulbs down yet? If so, it may interest you to know that they are Turkish by descent, and Central Asiatic before that, not of the Netherlands.

The Associated Bulb Growers of Holland sold us $35,000,000 worth of bulbs last year, and the world was prettied up with 2,500,000,000 blooming plants, some of them grown in wooden shoes as if this were indigenous.

The tulip which came to Turkey from darkest Asia to decorate the harem gardens of the sultans. The flower, when presented to this or that wife, meant she was currently No. 1 on the hit parade. The bulb made its hazardous way to Holland, and that country blew its stack. Speculation in bulbs, between 1634 and 1637, made of our stock market of nearly 300 years later a pale imitation.

Prices became preposterous. In Holland, a single "Viceroy" bulb sold for "2 loads of wheat, 4 loads of rye, 4 fat oxen, 8 fat pigs, 12 fat sheep, 2 hogsheds of wine, 4 barrels of 8-lorin beer, 2 barrels of butter, 1,000 lbs of cheese, a bed, suit of clothes and a silver beaker."

The bulb market crash of 1637 bankrupted thousands. But out of the shambles came a hardy Dutch export, which requires no import of raw material, worth about $350,000,000 a year to the ancestors of people who once paid 2,500 florins, plus a new carriage and pair of horses, for a single "emperor Augustus."

Roy Campanella's luck ran dry in even-numbered years. INS's Tony Gannotes. Gannoy was the national league's Most Valuable Player in 1951, 1953 and 1955. In 1952, 1954 and 1956 he slumped. A series of operations on his hands began in 1954. He is as classy a man as ever wore spikes. All baseball, which means all America, is rooting for him.

Doctors, Dentist Clinics Planned

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — Twenty-five Arkansas business and professional men Tuesday filed incorporation papers with the secretary of state on a company which is to finance construction of doctors' and dentists' clinics throughout the state.

Max W. Nunn of Sheridan was listed as president, Dr. E. Walter Garretts of Little Rock, vice president, and Dr. Thornton B. Smith, secretary-treasurer of Physicians and Dentists Construction and Finance Company.

Dr. Garretts said the company does not have any projects as yet but expect to schedule some soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Milford Daniel, Mrs. Lora Johnson of Henderson, Texas was the weekend guest of the mother, Mrs. J. B. Mann.

DEPARTMENT STORE

SEEING IS BELIEVING — Busy as a one-armed paper-banger—that's how busy Roy Bicknell is as he plays his trade in Dallas, Tex. Bicknell lost his right arm below the elbow in an auto accident five years ago. Undaunted by his handicap, Bicknell then learned the paperbanging trade. Now, his co-workers claim he is just as fast and efficient as any two-armed brush welder.

By L. P. HOLMES

As he and Sergeant Grimes made their way along, a fuller measure of strength returned to Phil Ashland. The same fringes and tickets of stubborn brush were there to fight through, the same yawning pot holes and crevices to be painfully climbed over.

Abruptly there was a crouched, darting shadow, whisking from one pocket of lava to another. Sergeant Grimes called sharp warning to Phil. With the warning a gun flared, opening a pale bloom in the fog.

Two blows, two impacts, struck Phil Ashland. One in the chest, massively. Then a lesser, duller one against his back and shoulders as he fell before the power of the Modoc bullet and the lava leaped to meet him.

Instantly, all things became dim and far away. The reports of two more gunshots, though close to him, reached his ears as lost and fading echoes. He knew no pain, only a great lightness of feeling that carried him away to a world of nothingness.

Sergeant Grimes, driving a quick shot at the flitting, malignant shadow, had seen it falter slightly. Yet, tenuous as a wounded panther, it twisted and slithered behind a sheltering outcrop, and from there threw another slug from the Henry rifle it carried, a slug which tore its heart of Sergeant Asa Grimes.

Sebastian and Sam, laden with canteens and stretcher, worked into the lava, searching. Far out ahead, rifle fire was a distant spatter of dull echoes, marking the life of advance.

They were deep in the lavas when the bugles shrilled again, but that meant nothing to them even when retreating troopers burst through the dense fog.

They worked their way past another of the interminable flitting outcrops and saw three figures down in an area of a few short yards. Two were in Army blue, the third a volunteer in civilian clothes; this one half lying, half sitting, propped against a spine of lava, his head sagging. Sam Lester, looking down, swore softly. "One's that sergeant, Ward—Sergeant Grimes. Just this mornin' I was talking to him." Sam shook his head sadly.

At the sound of Sam's voice the civilian volunteer stirred and lifted his head, showing a face gone gray and cut deep with lines of suffering. It was Yancey McCleod. He spoke warning, his voice weak and slow.

"Watch yourselves. A wounded Modoc yonder. I saw him once, heard him move a couple of times. Maybe he's dead—by now. Maybe he's just waitin' to get himself another whole man."

Even as Yancey finished speaking, Ward Sebastian heard the faint ring of gun metal slithering over lava rock. He came around fast, reaching for the gun at his hip. A dozen times this day, toiling with his end of the loaded stretcher, he had cursed the

Philosophic Outlook on Dress Fad

By Doc Auld
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP)—Wilbur, our office grouch, has adopted a philosophic outlook on the fad of bag, or sack, dresses in which milady is chemising herself.

"It is none of my affair," he said. "If women want to make ashes of themselves in sackcloth, let them go right ahead."

He said it, not me. Take your complaints to him. Pressed on what he really thought about the new fashion, he said: "I think it's merely bagging the question."

However, the question of the bag may turn out to be academic. In the case of women's styles, now you see it, now you don't. The New York fashion showings a couple of weeks ago plumped for a gunysack look for American galloped.

From Sacks To Sex

But in Paris, whence the sack shape sprang forth like a monstrous ogre last July and breathed its poisonous message around the world, the spring season showings this week so far seem to be the greatest reversal—from sacks to sex—since Roy Ricogels galloped to glory.

Doubtless influenced by anguished cries from males. In all nations, the Parisian fashion boys are said to be sacking the sack and returning to clothing that shows signs of what's underneath it.

However, in Italy there's still bad news. The Italian fashions, instead of reversing themselves to something more form-fitting, have progressed right through the sack onward and outward into a thing called the barrel shape. It looks something like a blimp standing on end.

What Of The Future?

So much for the cloudy present. What of the future?

A New York firm put on a show recently in which it attempted to project what a ladies' retail clothing department might look like 10 years from now. Three predictions were notable.

One was the idea that a decade from now women might be fitted by radar.

Another was the suggestion that a brassiere might be manufactured on a do-it-yourself basis—applied in a spray on from an aerosol bottle and removable by washing.

The third idea was an electronic cash register with its tendrils in all phases of the business, able to tell the proprietor not only the current sale, but also keeping track of the stock sold and how much is left.

weight of the weapon, had even thought of laying it aside. Now, however, as he drew and leveled it, he blessed the solid, lethal heft of it.

Dim through the fog the shadowy outline of a shaggy head and pair of shoulders lifted above the edge of a close-by lava pocket. Sebastian drove a swift, point-blank shot. The figure sagged and slid from sight again, the rifle it was leveling, clattering loosely on the lava.

Gun poised for another shot if necessary, Sebastian moved over to the pocket and had his look. When he returned, Sam Lester asked him: "Know that one?"

Sebastian nodded. "Chumuck? Pete. When he worked for me he was faithful and harmless." He bent over Yancey McCleod. "How bad are you hurt, Yancey?"

"Don't bother with me. See what you can do for this young officer beside me."

Sebastian stepped past Yancey and knelt beside the figure in blue. He called sharply.

"Give a hand here, Sam. It's Phil Ashland!"

They lifted and eased the limp, sack figure onto their stretcher, after which Sebastian opened the tunic and had a look at the wound. The bullet had gone completely through the right side of Phil Ashland's chest.

"Bad," muttered Sebastian grimly. "That bullet went through a lung. But as long as it didn't stop inside, maybe he has a chance."

While they worked, Yancey McCleod began to talk.

"I was farther back when I got mine. In the belly. Know right away I was done for. But I didn't flinger to wait around until the squaws found me and went to work on me. Not that I'd blame them any of course—not after the things I've helped do to them."

Sebastian threw a swift glance at Yancey. Here was something he'd never expected to hear from this man. Yancey went on.

"I figured to get clear of the lavas if I could. I heard some body callin' for water. I took a look and saw him. I had a little left in my canteen, and gave it to him. Which reminds me. Right now I could use a drink myself."

When Sebastian proffered a canteen, Yancey's gripping hand shook so he could barely fit the container to his avid lips. He put it aside presently and sighed deeply.

"Heard a sawbones say one time never to give water to a man with a bullet in his belly. That feller never had one in his or knew what real thirst is."

Yancey lifted the canteen and took another drink.

Science Learns More About Sex Meaning

Science Today
By DELOS SMITH
United Press Science Editor

NEW YORK (UP)—Scientists are learning more about the meaning of sex, and how it is reached, from a study of the sex of an individual is determined.

Science has now shown that an individual has (1) genetic sex, (2) gonadal sex, (3) anatomical sex, (4) hormonal sex, (5) social sex, and (6) psychological sex. Fortunately, in most all individuals all these "sexes" agree and the individual is indubitably male or female.

Exceptions Stimulating
But there are exceptions, and these exceptions are stimulating scientific thought and investigation. As the international technical journal, "The Lancet," points out: "Results at any (sex level) may be equivocal; and when equivocal they may disagree with equally unequivocal results at any other level."

The case in point in current scientific discussion is that of an infant taken to Drs. J. B. Ashley and C. H. Jones of Liverpool at the age of 10 days because of "doubts about the true sex." The doctors have reported their bewildering both at a science meeting and to "The Lancet."

Some Doubts Arose
The doubts arose from an anomaly at the gonadal sex level which turned out to be quite minor. In hormonal and anatomical sexes, examination proved that the infant was most definitely female. Social and psychological sexes are not measurable in infants.

But in genetic sex, this infant was definitely male. Here it must be explained that the iden-

$50,000 for Petit Jean Development

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—The Arkansas Parks and Publicity Commission Tuesday set aside $50,000 for development of facilities at Petit Jean Mountain and Bull Shoals State Parks.

The Commission announced that $20,000 will be earmarked for improvement of cabins and Mather Lodge on Petit Jean Mountain. Another $30,000 will be spent to develop group camp facilities at Bull Shoals.

Lumber Firm to Improve Plant

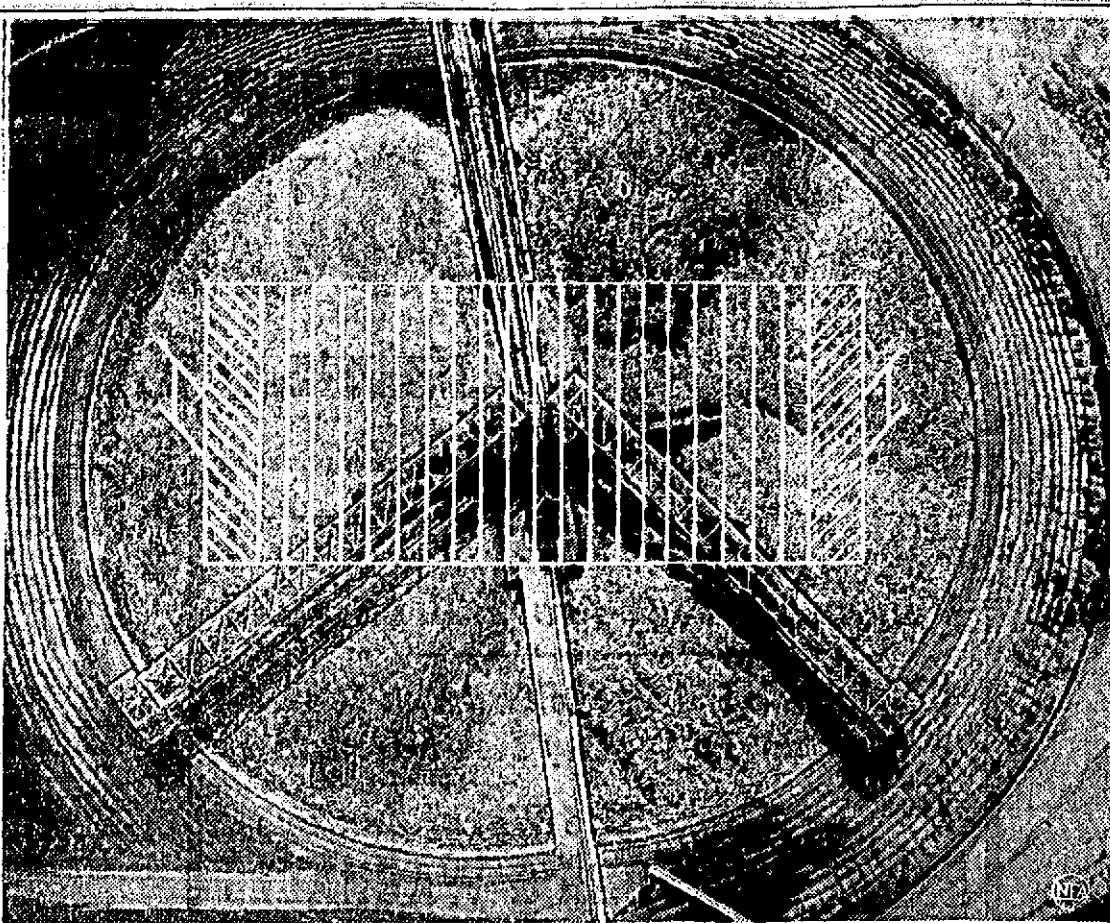

FORDYCE (UP)—The Fordyce Lumber Co. is planning a "long-range modernization program" of its plant here which may result in expenditure of nearly $1,000,000 over the next 10 years.

P. C. Gates, president of the firm, said today that $100,000 was to be spent at once for purchase of modern machinery and other equipment as part of the 10-year improvement plan.

Gates called the plans "an acknowledgment of our employees' capacity for quality production. More than 500 persons are employed in the plant."

Identification of genetic sex is a rather recent triumph of science. It has been shown that the nuclei of female body cells contain "drumsticks" not found in male cells. Genetic sex is the sex determined of the male and female germs in the union of the chromosomes.

The infant is of scientific interest because science can now determine the genetic sex of individuals. But there is no further knowledge the infant can provide science until she grows up. The doctors remarked: "It will be interesting to see whether this child attains a normal stature and has a normal puberty."

LUMBER BOWL—Artist's drawing of full-scale football field gives some idea of the size of this log storage pond at Calhoun, Tenn. The huge bowl, capable of storing two million logs, is part of the 80-million-dollar new mill of Bowaters Southern Paper Corporation, which consumes nearly 1,500 cords a day and produces 300,000 tons of newsprint annually. Lined with concrete, the tank measures 498 feet across, 40 feet in depth, and holds enough water to float a 10,000-ton ship. Logs arrive at the mill by train, barge, and truck. Parallel cable conveyors carry them to the center of the pond, where twin rotating stackers fling them into the pond. The 200-foot-long gantry cranes, extending below football field in aerial photo, ride the tracks around the rim.

Territory Returned to Utility Co.

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—The Arkansas Public Service Commission Tuesday returned territory to the Southern Gas and Electric Company which had been given to the Ozark Rural Electric Co.

A New Super Hostess Has Emerged

By GAY PAULEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP)—Move over, Miss Mink. Make room for another hostess with the mostest in this case, patience.

She is Lois M. Freeman, who's been staging parties for 11 years and hasn't had a debate yet. Only a little spilled lemonade or ice cream along the way.

Miss Freeman, a Manhattan grade school teacher, supervises children's parties in her spare time. In the years she's been taking over where mothers left off, she has directed more than 3,000 parties for children 5 to 11 years old.

"Great fun," said the tall, dark-haired teacher. "You never know what will happen next."

What is Mother Doing?
Miss Freeman hit on the idea for party planning while she was a high school senior. "I thought, what do mothers do at parties... aren't they awfully busy in the kitchen?"

Her first party was for a neighbor's child.

But the word spread and, all during her years at Hunter College, she kept up her sideline. Now she has a staff of 13 counselors, most of them recruited from Hunter, Barnard and other metropolitan colleges. Each gets a training period which includes at least one visit to a party with her.

"One test they all must pass," said Miss Freeman. "They've got to be willing to sit on the floor. Trademark of a Freeman counselor is a small red suitcase, equipped with a variety of game potentials from Scotch tape to peanuts."

Kids Go For 'Murder'
"The all-time favorite with the children is a game called 'murder,'" said the party planner. "An eight-year-old girl taught it to me... and it is perfectly harmless." Has to do with the children drawing cards to determine which one shall be the murderer—the ace determines this—and which shall be the detectives. The detectives leave the room while the rest of the children dream up alibis to prove they didn't do it.

When the detectives return, the children start explaining where they were on the night of "And," said Miss Freeman, "a child psychologist would have a field day with some of the answers."

Miss Freeman said her clientele is varied, and not necessarily wealthy. One of her counselors once supervised a party in a cemetery—it was for the caretaker's daughter.

Physician Sued for $321,000

JOESBORO (UP)—Widows of two men killed Jan. 19 in a mid-air collision of two light planes filed suits Tuesday in Crutcher Circuit Court asking a total of $321,000 from a Paragould physician whom they charged with negligence.

Mrs. Charles H. Busby of Jonesboro asked $185,000 and Mrs. Bill Wayne Robinson of Paragould sought $155,000 for their husbands' deaths.

The suits charged Dr. R. W. Harrison was negligent in that his aircraft struck the craft carrying Busby and Robinson. It was landing and caused it to crash. Dr. Harrison managed to crash-land his plane and escaped injury.

Plight of U. S. Rails Serious Situation

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Those numerous individuals who would like to substitute for the American way of life a father-knows-best system of state socialism should find considerable comfort in the plight of the nation's railroads.

The railroads are in trouble. The trouble is so seriously and deeply imbedded in the industry as to give the situation the color of a national calamity.

Railroad troubles are as bad and probably as dangerous as are the trouble afflicting American farmers. They are as urgent and just about as closely related to national defense as are the troubles the United States is having with its satellite—launching rockets.

If railway managers were as numerous as farmers, there would be here in Congress a powerful railroad bloc capable of and determined to divert great chunks of the taxpayers' money to the nation's railroads.

What afflicts the railroads is just about what afflicts the American farmers—high costs and low income.

UA Course Attracts Many Engineers

FAYETTEVILLE (UP)—Engineers from four states will participate in the third annual highway short course at the University of Arkansas Feb. 27-28.

J. R. Bissett, associate director of the University's Engineering Experiment Station, said between 125 and 150 engineers are expected from Arkansas, Oklahoma, Missouri and Tennessee. A number of outstanding engineers will be the speakers.

Editor Named to Children's Board

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—Gov. Faubus Tuesday named Keith Tudor publisher of an Arkadelphia weekly newspaper, to the Arkansas Children's Colony board.

Tudor will replace Miss Theodora Marks of El Dorado. Faubus also reappointed L. C. Dial of Brinkley to the Publicity and Parks Commission, and H. Finley Vison of Little Rock to the Arkansas Merit System Council.

Negro Students Will Not Withdraw

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—Mrs. Daisy Bates, president of the Arkansas chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said Tuesday the nine Negro students at Central High School will not withdraw.

She said, however, school officials "need to take a firm hand" because "troublemakers" harass the colored students continually.

Mrs. Bates said for a while the "troublemakers" carried water pistols and squirted ink on the faces of the colored girls. Then they threatened to use acid in steady state.

"I don't see how the situation could get much worse," she said.

Better Science Students Is the Answer

By CHARLES L. STAFFORD
AP Staff Writer

One educator put it this way: "We won't launch any satellites by turning out a lot of students in science fields."

"We may by turning out better ones."

He is J. Cloyd Miller, a member of the New Mexico State Board of Education. He was discussing a tough new rule that will send most of the science teachers in his state back to school.

Since the Russians successfully launched the first moon in October, Americans have been asking whether our educational system has failed, and if so where.

An Associated Press survey carried the question across the country to educators at both the state and local levels. At the state level, it found signs of positive action and a wealth of ideas. Several states have taken steps to improve science teaching, broaden the scope of science courses and give talented students new opportunities to learn. Others are studying what needs to be done.

Says Miller: "If they have been out a long while, they need refreshing in their fields. Science is something which doesn't stand still."

New Mexico is seeking better teaching. This may be a natural thing. New Mexico first joined the atom age. The first A-bomb was tested there, and high priority installations dot the state.

The new rule that Miller mentions almost triples the amount of study a teacher needs to teach science.

By Sept. 1, 1960, he says, a science teacher must have 24 hours in laboratory courses, including eight hours of physics and one course each in chemistry and biology. Two years later, the minimum requirement will be 36 hours of science.

"My idea is that if we had these strict requirements in the past—and could have gotten the teachers—we (the United States) would have been in a much better position today," says Miller, who also is president of New Mexico Western College.

SAL CONSIDERS ASHEVILLE

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UP)—Asheville, N.C., without organized baseball for two years, may be added to the Class A South Atlantic League as the eighth team, John Duncan, a Knoxville attorney who is acting league president, said Asheville is "strongly interested" in obtaining a franchise and a group of businessmen has invited league officials to discuss the possibilities.

Ran Away But Didn't Know Where to Go

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—A 19-year-old youth had a tragic question for police the other night: "Where do you go when you run away from home?" he sobbingly inquired in the police station.

Officers said they called the boy's parents who earlier had reported him missing. They came and took him home. They told officers the boy probably considered running away because of a poor mark in school.

Foxx Admits Mistakes in Career

By MILTON RICHMAN
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—Jimmie Foxx sadly admits making "many mistakes" during his lifetime, but probably his biggest was keeping his desperate financial plight a proud secret from Red Sox owner Tom Yawkey.

Yawkey, a millionaire many times over, quite possibly is the most generous man in baseball.

His list of philanthropies is a long one. No one ever will know the exact extent of Yawkey's openhandedness because he prefers not to advertise it.

The widow of a famed baseball executive was only one of many who could testify to his generosity. She received a check from Yawkey regularly each month until she died. An ex-Red Sox player is another perfect example. Even though he was never a regular with Boston, he was given a well-paying, lifetime accounting job by Yawkey after an accident ended his playing career.

Yawkey was not aware of Foxx's acute financial situation. When it was publicly revealed two weeks ago, Yawkey was hunting in South Carolina.

News of Foxx's distress resulted in 252 communications to him, many of the wires containing job offers of every type and description.

By the time Jimmie visited the Red Sox front office in Boston, he was of a mind to weigh any offer the ball club would make against the number of outside ones he was considering. He was even a bit cocky.

Foxx decided to take the Red Sox offer, a coaching berth with their Minneapolis club in the American Assn. His salary wasn't announced, but it is probably about $50,000 a year. Also announced was a piece of advice given Foxx by a Red Sox official.

Petroleum constitutes eight of every 10 tons of commerce handled in Texas harbors.

About 220,000 Texans are employed in the state's petroleum industry.
